DISASTER VICTIMS URGED TO REGISTER

Utter, Complete Devastation Is Indescribable

By DONALD BURKEEN
Ledger & Times Staff

A number of Calloway County people stood in stunned shocked disbelief yesterday as they looked at homes, which only thirty minutes before had offered them shelter, and contained all their earthly belongings, which in a few short moments had disappeared completely or presented a picture of complete destruction.

A tornado, filled with all the terrible power of several atomic bombs, swept through the northern section of the county and cleared a swath through several communities, a quarter of a mile wide.

A house trailer owned by Mrs. Ruth Lamb, completely disappeared. The home of her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Smith and family was carried away by the vicious winds which twisted the home from its foundation, blasted it to bits, and carried it along the path of destruction.

The entire Smith family was killed.

Gusty Winds And Cloudy Skies Left From Storms Of Yesterday

By United Press International

A third victim died today and at least three others were in serious to critical conditions as the result of a killer tornado that ripped through the Kirksey-Hardin communities of western Kentucky Wednesday.

It was one of two tornadoes that hit the state during the day, along with torrential rains and damaging winds that caused property damage which could only be estimated roughly in millions of dollars.

The first and deadly twister hit about noon, (CST), at Hardin and the nearby communities of Kirksey and Kirksey Lake, cutting a 300- to 500-yard wide swath along Ky. 80 and U. S. 641.

It brought immediate death to Mrs. Bill Myers and Jerry W. Lamb, neighbors in the Hardin vicinity, and Mrs. Eugene Washam, 75, died early today at a Murray hospital.

Cause of death was listed as multiple contusions and shock.

Strikes While Fleeing

Mrs. Myers and her husband were running from their home to a neighbor's house when the tornado struck, killing her. Myers picked up her body and ran on, reaching the neighbor's just as the dwelling was hit.

Myers was one of 14 persons, including Mrs. Washam, admitted to a Murray hospital, where her condition today was listed as "quite serious."

Mrs. Washam's husband also was listed in serious condition, as was Keith Smith, 5, who suffered "multiple concussion." Mrs. Washam's daughter was reported in fair condition.

Lamb was walking along a road near his home when the twister struck, killing him and hurled him 300 yards, injuring him fatally.

Reporter who reached Hardin shortly after the tornado hit, said he saw "at least a dozen homes."

Mrs. Robbie Wilson Injured As Wind Puts Car In Ditch

Mrs. Robbie Wilson of the Coldwater Road was injured in a one-car accident last night about 8 o'clock as she was returning from services at the Union Grove Church of Christ.

The accident occurred about one-half mile south of Penny on Highway 788. It is reported that Mrs. Wilson, driving a 1967 Chevrolet, started to pass another car, a puff of wind just seemed to lift her car turning it sharply to the left into a side ditch.

Mrs. Wilson was rushed to the Murray Hospital where her condition this morning was listed as good. Her car was removed last night about 10 o'clock by Parker Motors wrecker.

Cooper Helps Down Amendment To Bill

A wire from Senator John Sherman Cooper to the Ledger and Times today read as follows: The Williams amendment to the farm bill which would have abolished the price support program for tobacco growers was defeated in the Senate 63 to 26. Senator Cooper who was in charge of the opposition said "I was glad to fight the amendment and see it defeated overwhelmingly."

In the debate Cooper said "The amendment would have no effect on health, it would only flood the country with cheap tobacco and grind down the income of the tobacco farmers."

Twelve Rifle Teams Enter Tournament

Twelve rifle teams and two pistol teams have entered the NRA Rifle and Pistol Sectional Tournament to be held here March 13-15.

Several more are expected to enter before the deadline, according to Capt. James Perkins.

Rifle teams entered are: Mississippi State, three teams; Rose Poly Tech, two teams; University of Kentucky, two teams; Western, two teams; and one team from Eastern, University of Louisville, and Middle Tennessee.

Western and Louisville each have entered a pistol team.

The tourney will open Friday at 7 a.m. with the pistol team and individual matches.

That night after the wildlife dinner and dance, Kentucky League season and pistol tournament awards will be presented.

Saturday the riflemen compete for the individual honors.

The tournament winds up Sunday with rifle team competition and rifle awards, both team and individual.

Found Self In Middle Of Cornfield Mrs. Smith Said

"The wind made a loud sound and I went to the door to see about it. The next thing I knew I was in the middle of the cornfield."

That was the description of Mrs. Martha Smith, Route 2, Kirksey, who with her husband and two children apparently were near the middle of the tornado which struck just north of this western Kentucky community Wednesday.

Mrs. Smith, who suffered from head lacerations, said she didn't know if she was blown from her home.

"I don't know what happened—all I know is I started to open the door, and the next thing I remember, I was in the cornfield, and nearby were Charles (her husband) and Keith and Belinda.

Keith is five and Belinda is two. All four are in the same hospital room here along with two other children being treated for injuries suffered in the storm. They are among more than 20 who were injured. Two others lost their lives.

Huge trees were uprooted, automobiles had been lifted skyward and bounced like golf balls. Fence posts were scattered like straw in every direction, houses were leveled to near splinters, kitchen stoves, refrigerators and other household items lay in remote sections of adjacent cornfields. It was as if Halloween pranksters had been at work.

A state policeman who was sent from Paducah to help control traffic — eighteers caused havoc by jamming access routes to the area — remarked:

"That was the most devastating sight I have ever seen."

Three Given Sentences Of Two Years

A Calloway Circuit Court jury yesterday handed down sentences of two years each to Jimmy Hargrove, Eddy Hargrove and Miss Wanda Sue Story on charges of forgery.

The Hargroves boys will serve their sentence at Eddyville and Miss Story at the women's penitentiary. The Hargroves are now serving a sentence of one year for jail breaking and presently are at the Benton jail.

The three were charged with conspiring and passing a $20.00 check at the Jim Adams IGA Grocery on January 13 of this year. The name of Goltie Morris was signed to the check.

Morris had testified yesterday morning that the signature on the check was not his. He said that he had given Miss Story three checks that he could remember, but that he had not given her this one.

Several witnesses were heard yesterday morning for the prosecution. In the afternoon Attorney Overbey placed Miss Story and Jimmy Hargrove on the witness stand.

Miss Story testified that the check was signed by Morris and that the two Hargrove boys were present. The action yesterday concluded the present term of Calloway Circuit Court.

Radios Of Many Agencies Give Aid

Murray and Calloway County, depended completely on short wave radio yesterday for communications between sites in the disaster area and the city rescue facilities.

Radios on state police cars, sheriff's cars, city police, gas system vehicles and ham radios made fast communication between one another, the city or the "outside world."

Word was flashed by short wave radio while long distance lines were knotted and snarled by the tornado winds, making their use impossible.

Rescue Squad Saves Home

The Murray Rescue Squad saved the home of J. B. Scott yesterday morning near Wiswell, about 7:00 o'clock.

The call came to the squad and they answered at once in a driving rainstorm.

Apparently lightning had struck the house, setting the LP gas line on fire. The sleepers and floor of the house were burning when the squad arrived and smoke was issuing from the attic.

A hole was knocked in the foundation of the house and a hose run from the house next door. A portable five gallon pressure tank was also put into use and the fire was extinguished.

Some damage was done in the fire, but the home was saved. The heavy rain storm was in progress during the fire, but the rain could not get to where the house was burning.

Woodrow Rickman is president of the squad.

Rev. And Mrs. Bill Hendricks Now At San Jose, Costa Rica

Rev. and Mrs. Bill Hendricks and two children, Danese, age 10, and Danny, age eight, are now living in San Jose, Costa Rica, where they are attending language school for one year in preparation for their river missionary work in southern Nicaragua and northern Costa Rica.

The family left for Costa Rica November 20, 1963, after having lived in Detroit, Mich., where he organized the Grace Baptist Church on Eleven Mile Road six years ago. When he left, the church had about six hundred members.

After their arrival in Costa Rica they were forced to move due to the heavy fallout from the volcano prior to its eruption. In a letter to their aunt, Mrs. Claude Miller of Murray, they said for their not to be alarmed about the volcano as they were safe. The fallout was affecting their health at the time of their moving. Their address is Apartado 3512, San Jose, Costa Rica.

Rev. Hendricks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hendricks of Detroit, Mich., and the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hendricks and Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Jones of Murray and Calloway County. Rev. Hendricks' sister, Mrs. Gene Elliott, the former June Hendricks and her family now reside near Mayfield.

The well known Calloway County, 30 years of age, is a graduate of the seminary at Fort Worth, Texas, and is associated with the World Baptist Fellowship Mission at Arlington, Texas. He has made two trips previously to Costa Rica in preparation for his work.

Rev. Hendricks is married to the former Grace Murphy of Jacksonville, Fla. She attended the same seminary as her husband and is well prepared for the mission field work also.

Frankfort, Ky. (UPI) — Gov. Edward T. Breathitt expressed his "deepest sympathy" Wednesday to the families of the victims of a tornado which tore through Calloway and Marshall counties.

"I am deeply concerned and grieved over the tragedy which has struck communities this afternoon in Calloway and Marshall counties," he said.

"As governor, I have marshaled the facilities of state government to aid local officials in coping with the disaster," he said in a statement.

Breathitt said highway crews with heavy equipment and vehicles from Graves, Calloway, Ballard and Carlisle counties have been called in to the area to clear roads and help with the removal of debris.

An additional 15 state troopers were dispatched to the area to assist local enforcement officials, the statement said.

Breathitt said that Livingston Campbell, Hopkinsville, the area director of civil defense, "is in constant contact with this office."

He added that he has directed "staff officials" to do all they can to help the people of these stricken communities.

The three were charged with conspiring and passing a $20.00 check at the Jim Adams IGA Grocery on January 13 of this year. The name of Goltie Morris was signed to the check.

Morris had testified yesterday morning that the signature on the check was not his. He said that he had given Miss Story three checks that he could remember, but that he had not given her this one.

Red Cross Teams Move Into Area To Initiate Recovery

The American Red Cross has set up a Disaster Headquarters at the local Red Cross Chapter office in the Calloway County Court House and anyone was urged to go to this office as soon as possible and register.

Mrs. Jane Clay Sutherland, Field Representative in this area for many years and Robert Wrenn, Field Representative from Princeton, Kentucky are in Murray organizing the rehabilitation procedures.

Red Cross Officials have a survey team in the area at this time to survey the damage done. These teams moved into play yesterday afternoon, literally on the heels of the disaster.

The Red Cross listed the following steps to be taken by disaster victims:

1. The first step toward recovery is to see what the family needs and what the family can do for itself.

2. Go to the Calloway County Red Cross office in the courthouse and register. An application for assistance should be filled out at this office.

3. Red Cross will review the situation and will develop a practical plan for recovery.

4. After the family's recovery plan is approved, the Red Cross will advise the family.

5. The family will do its own buying in replacing property lost.

6. The Red Cross will pay the merchant by check on his presentation of the disbursing order.

7. With Red Cross aid, and by doing what the family can do for itself, the family can return to normal as quickly as possible.

Miss Sutherland emphasized that the FIRST THING TO DO FOR THE DISASTER VICTIMS IS TO REGISTER AT THE RED CROSS OFFICE IN THE COURT HOUSE.

She said that unofficial figures at this time show that 19 families were affected in Marshall County and 11 in Calloway County.

The present effort is for every family affected in Calloway County to register at the Red Cross office, so that recovery teams can go into action.

It was pointed out that this Red dealing Elementary School on Highway 68 in Marshall County, were probably as victims of the tornado as any teachers of the schools. They missed by the storm Wednesday.

Houses on both side and in front of the school were leveled by the storm. Mrs. Solomon said as her group was returning from eating lunch, they were in the hall and one of the teachers looked out after this terrible roar was heard and sounded the warning of a tornado.

The teachers immediately told the children to go to their rooms and lie down on the floor.

The Pairdealing school building was not hit, but after the storm the children looked out to see the large amount of destruction and one child said, "Look Mrs. Solomon there is a coffee pot in the front yard."

In moments parents were streaming into the schools and their emotions reached a peak when they saw that the children were safe. The children were sent home as quickly as possible by cars and buses and Mrs. Solomon said she and Mrs. Sifton were back in Murray by 2 p.m.

Six Murray people teach at the South Marshall High School which was almost miraculously unharmed by the fierce storm.

Charles "Ray" Adams said this morning that his classroom was on the southwest and he looked out about 11:35 a.m. and saw this large cloud, about as wide as one or two football fields, with debris flying in it. He watched it for about a minute and it seemed to be sitting still or heading toward the school when suddenly it shifted to the right taking the course across U. S. Highway 641, about 3/4 mile south of the school. Other teachers in the west

Ham Radio Used To Get Word Out Of Murray Yesterday

The American Red Cross "ham radio" network was used by the Ledger and Times yesterday to get word to the "outside world" of the disaster which struck Calloway and Marshall counties yesterday.

A terse message was dictated to Ed Penton giving the bare essentials of the news, and he forwarded this message to Paris, Tennessee.

All long distance lines were down yesterday and repeated attempts to "get through" failed. Local operators reported that they were unable to get connections out of Murray.

The ham radio network is a highly important part of the Red Cross Disaster Program, since in mitted to the Murray Hospital suffering from exposure and shock with both Mr. and Mrs. Smith also suffering from head lacerations and other injuries.

As I drove through the stricken area, the amount of damage done in only a short while was almost beyond belief. The people of the area, many of whom I know well, were literally stunned by what had happened.

The enormous power of the tornado and the utter devastation, is almost indescribable.

I went to the Smith settlement near the Darnell Farm about one mile north of Kirksey. When I arrived at the area the house trailer where Mrs. Ruth Lamb lived was gone. It had vanished into thin air. Fortunately Mrs. Lamb was not there when the wind struck.

Next door where her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Smith and family lived, the house had vanished. It had crumbled with the family in it. Fortunately none of them were killed.

Power lines and telephone wires littered the ground. Mr. Smith's Rustic, rolled and tumbled several hundred feet, was demolished. Next door was Mr. Smith's brother, John B. Smith. He told me that he had heard the sound of the wind and went to the door to see what it was. He said that he saw the terrible funnel and was unable to close the door again, so he grabbed his child and ran out the back door and pressed close to the ground in a ditch. The tornado passed over them leaving them unhurt.

The house was smashed and twisted by the malevolent, churning winds and reduced to a pile of broken lumber.

Mr. Smith's 1960 Ford pickup truck in front of the house, was blown for several hundred feet and the giant hand of the tornado literally twisted the motor out of the truck and cast the motor and the truck aside, also a corn picker as it continued on its path of destruction.

His tractor was picked up and cast many yards away and again the twisting motion of the wind tore off the left rear wheel of the tractor and set it down again, standing upright.

Across the road an old house used for stripping tobacco was smashed and tobacco strewn over a wide area. The tobacco barn was also a casualty of the tornado.

Six head of cattle were blown away and scattered. Huge trees some over two feet in diameter were ripped from the ground and broken like soda straws.

Acres of woodland were smashed and blown clean.

Clay and Otis Darnell who live about two and one-half miles north of Penny suffered damaged homes. The home of Otis Darnell had the roof damaged and the front door was blown in. Mrs. Darnell received cuts on the hands from broken glass.

The barn on the farm of Clay Darnell was blown down and a pony received broken legs. It had to be destroyed.

One home in the area caught fire, but neighbors aided by a heavy rain put it out.

Proceeding further into the devastation, at the intersection of the Kirksey and Mayfield Road, where a small but needed grocery had stood only minutes before, only the gas pumps testified to the fact that a business was once operated there. The store was demolished.

The home of J. L. Green in the Kirksey community was completely demolished. Trees were festooned with clothing, pieces of furniture and other belongings of the family as one might see in a parish nightmare. The family had twelve children. No one was at home when tragedy struck.

Kirksey Elementary School, containing over 300 children was still in session protected perhaps by the hand of Providence.

Hardly a home in the path of the storm was not affected in some way, a roof damaged, a porch blown away, a barn crumpled, or some building twisted off its foundation.

Livestock, pigs and chickens could be seen loose in the area, freed by the strong winds which obliterated barns, fences, or pens.

Leaving the area of devastation, one had the unreal feeling that it was not really true.

But to the people stricken by the tornado, it was too true as they saw the material representation of a lifetime of work swept away in the time it takes to blink the eye.

RUMMAGE SALE

The Murray Woman's Club will sponsor a rummage sale at the American Legion Hall Saturday, March 7, from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Proceeds will go to the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation fund. Hot dogs will also be sold.

Ham Radio Used . . .

As was the case here yesterday, telephone communication was available, outside of Murray since many lines were ripped and snarled by the high winds.

The disaster here Wednesday, proved to be excellent training for an even more severe disaster which might occur.

All phases of the Red Cross Disaster Program went into full force, including the publishing of the event and publication of names of the injured and where they were located.

Fourteen persons were admitted to the Murray Hospital and two to the Houston-McDevitt Clinic.

All police agencies cooperated in the disaster aiding in the unloading of ambulances and wherever else they were needed. They also came to the aid of other police agencies on the disaster.

Marvin Wraether, Disaster Program director, went to his post at the American Red Cross office yesterday and assumed the directing of the Red Cross effort. Mrs. Coleman McDevitt reported at the Murray Hospital.

met to the ground almost as if it were coming from an unlimited battery of operated machineguns. In about 12 hours better than five inches of rain was measured at Benton, 10 miles north of the tornado center.

The first two officials to the tornado-stricken area were state policemen, who normally work this section. One Trooper Guy Turner had been checking the motor vehicle accident about two miles east of Hardin. The other was traveling in his squad car about two miles north.

Seeing the tornado's funnel, they went immediately to the scene and after surveying the damage, called for assistance to reach the injured, several of whom were trapped in their collapsed homes.

An irony of the day was that the new Benton Hospital, which held its open house only this past Sunday, and is scheduled to receive patients before the end of the week, was not operating when the storm hit. It is several miles closer to the scene than hospitals of Murray and at Mayfield.

However, officials of the hospital did offer to make its facilities available if they were needed. The existing institutions were able to take care of the injured.

Mrs. Joanna Sykes, fourth grade teacher, said the full impact of the almost near tragedy seemed to strike her when she returned home at 3:45 and realized how near the school was hit. Barbara Green, whose home was destroyed, was in Mrs. Sykes' room.

Boxes of clothing were being brought to the Kirksey School this morning for the Green family who lost everything in the storm.

A motel at Cave City was unroofed, and a man was injured by flying glass when a store window at Horse Cave was shattered by the wind.

Rainfall officially recorded at 5.31 inches caused flooding of 12 to 15 residential blocks at Paducah, and many streets in suburban Louisville also were under water Wednesday afternoon from 4:17 inches of rain.

Streets in Russellville were blocked by water twice during the day. Five families were taken out of their homes at Fredericktown, near Springfield, by fast debris in Green River closed the Mammoth Cave Ferry.

Flemingsburg, in north-central Kentucky—which suffered from a severe drought in the fall and early winter—had 2.40 inches of rain.

Rescue work in the area was severely hampered Wednesday afternoon by sightseers whose automobiles created traffic jams and blocked ambulances and police vehicles. State police finally broadcast warnings that motorists found in the area without valid reason would be fined.

The second tornado hit shortly after 3 p. m. (EST), just north of Adairville, near the Tennessee border in Logan County.

It caused heavy property damage and some injuries in a strip five to six miles long and a mile and a half wide. Deputy Sheriff Gene Swartz said several residents of the area told him they had seen the tornado's funnel cloud.

Claude Rags was injured when his car was blown off a road into a field about five miles north of Adairville. He was treated for cuts and bruises.

Four members of the Dempsey Smith family suffered scratches and bruises from flying debris but were otherwise unharmed when their farm home was destroyed a mile and a half west of Adairville. All were listed in fair condition at a Russellville hospital.

Bus Tips Over
A loaded school bus tipped over near Russellville Wednesday morning while the driver was backing down a country road blocked by bridge viaduct. The bus tipped over into some standing water, but the driver and a teen-age girl on the bus were able to get the children out without serious injuries.

Antenna Mast Falls
High winds earlier in the day blew down the 370-foot antenna mast radio station WTCG and shattered a brick garage at Campbellsville. Wind also blew the roof off the Metcalf County High School gymnasium of Edmonton, forcing postponement of a high school dis-side classrooms saw the tornado and had their pupils lie down on the floor. Adams said after the huge cloud shifted, the wind and torrential rains began.

Immediately after the storm hit, the school was evacuated as quickly as possible with many of the parents coming for the students. The school buses arrived as soon as possible, but due to the traffic congestion, the school of an enrollment of 390 was not cleared until about 2:40 p. m.

Murrayans teaching at the South Marshall School are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rob Adams, William Smith, Allen Franklin, Mrs. Evon Kelly, and Mrs. Bill Palm.

This morning the students at Kirksey School were still in the same excited state as they were all yesterday afternoon after word was received that the storm had destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Green and done the other destruction in the area.

The Green children attend the school and emotions were high as they learned of the tragedy that had struck their home which naturally was felt by the other three hundred children.

Teachers at Kirksey said it was during the lunch period. The first, second, and third graders had already returned to the main school building when the storm hit, but the fourth, fifth, and sixth graders were in the lunchroom which is a building to itself just south of the school. The seventh and eighth grades were also in the main building.

One of the first grade teachers, Mrs. Laura Jennings, said that when they returned from lunch she noticed this terrible cloud, but tried not to let the children know of her fright. She watched the cloud from her west window and said the hard rains and wind began and it seemed it was taking the whole side of the building, but fortunately the school was unharmed except for the telephone being out from noon on and the electricity was cut off.

An odd thing that happened was that the electric clock in Mrs. Marie Tucker's second grade room was stopped at 12, but the electric clock in Mrs. Jennings' room didn't stop until 1:35 p. m. when another hard rain and wind came.

Mrs. Joanna Sykes, fourth grade teacher, said the full impact of the almost near tragedy seemed to strike her when she returned home at 3:45 and realized how near the school was hit. Barbara Green, whose home was destroyed, was in Mrs. Sykes' room.

Four members of the Dempsey Smith family suffered scratches and bruises from flying debris but were otherwise unharmed when their farm home was destroyed a mile and a half west of Adairville. All were listed in fair condition at a Russellville hospital.

Bus Tips Over
A loaded school bus tipped over near Russellville Wednesday morning while the driver was backing down a country road blocked by bridge viaduct. The bus tipped over into some standing water, but the driver and a teen-age girl on the bus were able to get the children out without serious injuries.

Antenna Mast Falls
High winds earlier in the day blew down the 370-foot antenna mast radio station WTCG and shattered a brick garage at Campbellsville. Wind also blew the roof off the Metcalf County High School gymnasium of Edmonton, forcing postponement of a high school district tournament game.

A motel at Cave City was unroofed, and a man was injured by flying glass when a store window at Horse Cave was shattered by the wind.

Rainfall officially recorded at 5.31 inches caused flooding of 12 to 15 residential blocks at Paducah, and many streets in suburban Louisville also were under water Wednesday afternoon from 4:17 inches of rain.

Streets in Russellville were blocked by water twice during the day. Five families were taken out of their homes at Fredericktown, near Springfield, by fast debris in Green River closed the Mammoth Cave Ferry.

Flemingsburg, in north-central Kentucky—which suffered from a severe drought in the fall and early winter—had 2.40 inches of rain.

Rescue work in the area was severely hampered Wednesday afternoon by sightseers whose automobiles created traffic jams and blocked ambulances and police vehicles. State police finally broadcast warnings that motorists found in the area without valid reason would be fined.

The second tornado hit shortly after 3 p. m. (EST), just north of Adairville, near the Tennessee border in Logan County.

It caused heavy property damage and some injuries in a strip five to six miles long and a mile and a half wide. Deputy Sheriff Gene Swartz said several residents of the area told him they had seen the tornado's funnel cloud.

Claude Rags was injured when his car was blown off a road into a field about five miles north of Adairville. He was treated for cuts and bruises.

ATLANTIC RESCUE—The Coast Guard cutter Coos Bay's crewmen struggle against the heaving Atlantic in rescue of 11 crewmen from the foundering British freighter Ambassador. They tried to rig a breeches buoy, but had to resort to rafts instead.

NINE CHILDREN DIE IN HOME FIRE—Nine children of a 20-member family were killed when fire raged through this three-story, wood and brick home in Troy, N. Y. Eight of the victims were children of Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Sousa. The ninth was a granddaughter. The parents and a 17-year-old son, who sounded the alarm, were treated at a hospital. The fire was believed caused by a faulty space heater.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 383—The most elegant hotel in the United States a century ago was the Astor House, on Broadway, facing New York's City Hall Park. A quarter century after it was built by John Jacob Astor with some of the money amassed in the Western fur trade, it was still unchallenged seriously as a center of fashionable social conviviality.

The Astor had not been such an innovator as the Tremont House in Boston, where a traveler was enabled to have a room all to himself instead of having to double up with a stranger, or the Irving House in New York, which was the first hostelry to have a private bath in its bridal suite. (Other guests had to go to "bathing rooms" down the hall or in the basement.) But the Astor adopted whatever was deemed comfortable and suitable to its guests.

Hence it was the chosen stopping place for the most distinguished travelers who passed through New York on their way to or from Washington during the war; the place where Farragut was dined and feted as a naval hero before he went back to the River campaign in January 1864; the place to which President Lincoln sent Mrs. Lincoln for a recuperative change of scene when she was distraught and ill over the death of their son and the loss of two of her brothers in battle. Lincoln himself had stopped there in 1860. Other guests had included Andrew Jackson, Sam Houston, Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, Charles Dickens, Jenny Lind, Prince de Joinville.

"TARZAN WOMAN"—A wild chimpanzee gets a banana handout from Jane Goodall, 29, in Tanganyika during her 3½-year stay there to study apes. She collected information which Dr. Melvin M. Payne of the National Geographic Society, sponsor of the study, says may "stand for all time as a unique record." She reported in Washington that chimps make and use tools for a variety of purposes; they communicate, not only by gestures but by complicated calls ranging from a simple "Hoo" to a sort of panting sentence that might be written as "Hoo-hoo-hoo-hoo-hoo." She said they are extremely clean and never foul their nests as gorillas do. (Photo Copyright National Geographic Society.)

FARM FACTS

IMPORTED MEAT American farmers are faced with a new problem—that of competition from imported meat. Already caught in the cost-price squeeze and smothered by burdensome surpluses, he is now confronted with greatly increased importations of meat that sells at prices too low to maintain American standards.

Reports show that last year imports of beef and veal increased 13% above those of 1962. It now amounts to over 10% of our domestic production. Boneless beef increased 19% over 1962. Lamb was up 74% and canned ham up 6%.

A major part of the imports was in the form of boneless beef. This competes primarily with meat from cull cows and bulls and therefore touches the pocketbooks of both slaughtermen and beef producers. The increase in importation is holding down the price of Kentucky lamb, and makes it difficult to maintain one of this state's profitable enterprises.

Most of the imported boneless beef goes into the retail market as steaks and hamburgers, and canned and processed meat. It is being used extensively by Kentucky processors and sold at many retail outlets.

Now farmers believe in reciprocal trade and realize that the U. S. must import if they are to export. However, they look with great alarm on such a sharp increase in meat imports. They feel that imports should be kept within reasonable bounds. Low beef prices are especially discouraging to Kentucky stockmen who are not now getting established in the business.

CREDIT NEEDS In the springtime the modern farmer's thoughts turn to credit. Present day farming requires a lot of capital. Expensive equipment and tremendous amounts of fertilizers are needed in addition to the usual kinds of seed, feed, labor and other essentials. Much of the cost is paid in the spring, requiring either direct or indirect financing. Where bank credit can be obtained most farmers find it easier to borrow money at the usual bank rates and pay cash rather than to buy on credit or borrow from credit institutions having added closing costs or higher interest rates.

The privilege of borrowing money at bank rates is earned by proving to the lender that one can produce efficiently, increase in collateral and meet his obligations as agreed upon. A person's credit rating—his ability to borrow—increases or decreases in relation to his performance and credit history.
